THE PRINCE ALBERT TIMES

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1883.

SATURDAY'S MEETING.

No more pitious appeals, no more humbling exhibition, was ever before witnessed in Prince Albert than that presented by Dr. Porter at the mass meeting on Saturday last. Even his followers were disgusted at his conduct. It is only charitable to suppose that his excitement was due to something stronger than that usually confined to medical jars. Convinced by Mr. Clarke, on every rash statement made during the campaign, he winced like a galled jade every time the lash descended. For an honorable opponent some pity might have been felt, but for one whose sole platform was a tirade of abuse and vilification no sympathy was expressed, and it would have been an act of charity, indeed, had the friends of Dr. Porter carried him away and relieved the meeting of his presence. His repeated interruptions of Mr. Clarke, his mean insinuations about others, and his other recklessness as to what he said or did evoked every fever of propriety and order. Had he had sense enough to have taken his defeat like a man he might have found sympathizers, but he utterly mistook the sense of the meeting when he undertook to leave his position with innocent swagger. Even his friends, his brother, sisters, could have sunk through the floor in shame. When Dr. Porter comes to his senses, if he has not already done so, he must acknowledge with bitter humiliation and shame the contemptible part he has played and the egregious lies he has made of himself. There are only reasons for him to retire as gracefully as he can from a field he should never have entered upon. It will be somewhat of a pay-off for no more will the ears of his followers be titillated by the line-drawing sentences and well rounded periods in which he graphically portrayed the natural wealth of the wonderful resources of this great North West of ours. If the Doctor allows his imagination to run full play he will in time come to believe that he himself was the discoverer of the North West Territories. No more will the other Nova Scotian make his anguished visits and recount his poverty in town and bank balances; no more will we hear of the indignity of capital seeking investment and opening up industries in the North West; and, last but not least, we will no more listen to the honeyed tones of the lineal monopolist of the only hot beer saloon and hotel parlour, when in that beautiful, classic and classic language of the poet he invites the guests to "come where the woodland smooths, and where the champagne murmurs for a young." The public will regret being deprived of all this but they will, we fancy, survive the loss. "The country is young," we have been recently told, and Dr. Porter himself acknowledged that he is not as old as he looks, and this latter is just about the size of it. We say that we told Dr. Porter at the start that he was too young, to enter for the race but he would take no heed to our words. If he lives long enough, though, he will learn that it is not as easy to be too clever, particularly when one is young, and the "country is young." So much for Luckington. Away with him! To the tower, to the tower.

SUDDEN DEATH.

As there were some inaccuracies in the funeral obituary notice we published in our last issue of the late William Oliver, who died very suddenly in his stable at the forks of the road on Saturday the 24th inst., we give insertion to the following statement of the facts handed in by Sergt. Bradon, Mounted Police Force:—"On the morning of Sunday the 24th inst., information was brought to the Police Paraph by Wm. LeFarlane, Wm. Oliver, formerly a member of the Mounted Police, a farmer residing at the forks of the road had been found dead in his stable. Being unable to ascertain the cause of his death and thinking that perhaps an investigation would be necessary, thought it my duty to call upon Dr. Porter, and with the Doctor, Rev. Canon Flett, W. M., E. J. Agnew, Senior Warden of Kingston Lodge, A. F. & A. M., (to which lodge deceased belonged) proceeded to his late residence. Upon making inquiries we found that on Saturday evening, March 24th, the deceased was found by Dr. McLeod lying on the floor of his stable apparently dead. Dr. McLeod immediately ran to the house of Dr. McFarlane about 300 yards off, who, together with him to the stable. They then with the assistance of a neighbour, Mr. Lytle, removed the body which was quite lifeless to his late residence. The next morning an examination of the remains was made by Dr. Porter who pronounced the opinion that the deceased had died of disease of the heart. The body was taken charge of by the officers of Kingston Lodge and removed to the lodge room in Prince Albert. The funeral took place on last Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended by the Freemasons and other prominent residents of the Settlement. The procession was formed at the lodge room and proceeded to the Presbyterian Church where the burial service of that denomination was performed by the Rev. Mr. Nevitt, who is also a Freemason. The usual Masonic ceremonies for the death were conducted by the Rev. Canon Flett, W. M., of the lodge. An inventory of Dr. Oliver's effects was taken by Mr. H. Keenan and myself by the direction of the W. M., and a man placed in charge of the property until his brother, Mr. John C. Oliver, lumber merchant of Toronto, can be heard from. This deceased owned quite a nice farm and considerable stock."
